5

Abstract Of The Disclosure

An on-line invention disclosure system includes a user computer (14), a server (12) and a database (18) coupled to the server. The server provides user screens to the user to prompt the users to provide disclosure information to the server. The server receives the disclosure information from the users and stores the information in the database while allowing access to the database after storing the information on the database.